1 MS. MOMANAEE: Anything you say --

2 THE COURT: Good job.

3 MR. REDELMAN: So the offer of a forensic
4 protocol, yes, we have proposed one. The last one that we
03:02:33 5 proposed was on July 1st, Your Honor, and we have not
6 received a response from --

7 THE COURT: Okay. Wait a minute.

8 MR. REDELMAN: Yes. Yes.

9 THE COURT: I'll give you a response --

03:02:42 10 MR. REDELMAN: Okay.

11 THE COURT: -- in the edges dripping blood. I
12 don't want any excuses. Get in some place that is
13 comfortable and not dominated by the corporations, parties,
14 law firms, just go some place nice and neat. The town is 03:03:10 15 full of people making a living renting their boardrooms.

16 MS. MOMANAEE: If the Court is inclined to
17 order us to mediation, I think that might be helpful.

18 MR. REDELMAN: I --

19 THE COURT: No. I want the data.

03:03:23 20 MS. MOMANAEE: I'm sorry?

21 THE COURT: I want the data in both people's 22 hands.

23 MR. REDELMAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: And then we will put you, and the 03:03:37 25 other side, and you all can try to work it out. I am not

1 Honor.

2 THE COURT: Just every other one. You only
3 needed to do it about every six months. I mean, people say
4 we're not tough. We are not as tough as they were.

03:13:43 5 MR. REDELMAN: No, sir.

6 THE COURT: It gave him a perspective about
7 America that some of his plantation-residing folk opponents
8 had. Shouldn't have crossed him.

9 Thank you. Counsel.

03:14:01 10 MR. REDELMAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

11 MS. MOMANAEE: Thank you for your time, Your
12 Honor.
